BREWERY HUYGHE

Brewing beer is an age-old tradition on the Appelhoek in Melle. The mammoth years of local beer art even date back to the 17th century. From 1902, a certain Leon Huyghe set his first footsteps in the local brewery. In the years that follow, Leon leads the brewery into modernity and in 1989 a proud pink elephant sees the light of day. In 1925, Leon Huyghe receives family reinforcement from son Albert and son-in-law Louis and the brewery is officially renamed Brouwerij L. Huyghe. Today, with Alain De Laet, the 4th generation of Huyghe is stirring the brew kettles. The elephant of yesteryear has become a large Belgian mastodon.

DOUGALLS

Andrew Dougall arrived in Cantabria in 1997 to deal with matters related to his book publishing house and was attracted to this land, with a climate similar to that of Britain. Previously in England he had worked in a brewery and Dougall came to the conclusion that in Spain most brands of beer taste very similar and that he could offer something different. So in 2003 he began to produce and distribute the first batches of beer under the Dougall's brand, which initially were not bottled but distributed in casks (wooden barrels) in the style of British ales. In 2006, the brewery became a pioneer in the craft sector, with a production of 15,000 liters per year, currently reaching a production capacity of 500,000 liters, with a staff of six employees. Its production has had a progressive annual growth, from 61,534 liters in 2012, 84,400 liters in 2013, 148,960 liters in 2014 and 196,740 liters in 2015. Its basic business philosophy is the environment in which it is made and produces the beer, as it symbolizes "our respect for rural areas and our bond with nature." It is among eight companies that work with the Agricultural Research and Training Center on a project to make the first gluten-free beer in Cantabria. In May 2019, through a crowdfunding campaign, they obtained financing for 1,250,000 euros to expand their factory and double production.

Garage Beer Co. is a brewery serving up the best craft beer in a bar that looks somewhat like a garage, with a distinctly vintage vibe and a hip industrial look. When beer lovers cross paths in life, sometimes they end up founding their own brewery. At least that's what happened when these two entrepreneurs (Alberto and James) met and set their dream in motion. The first step was finding a large enough space in the heart of the Eixample, where in addition to designing a roomy bar, they could also build their own brewery, where they craft four original beers: Garage IPA, Pale Ale Riba, Zambo and Karma. These four winning blends are joined each month by a new array of beers chosen at the whim and creativity of the brewmaster.

LA PIRATA BREWING

After a mutiny, they used to set fire to the enemy ship to eliminate evidence that could incriminate them. That is why some think that pirate is equivalent to incendiary, from the Greek pyros ("fire"). Pirate is that: incendiary, artisan and natural beers...and in love with beer, we started making the first long-suffering batches in our kitchen at home a few years ago. The first catastrophes were giving way to something increasingly drinkable....when beer began to look like beer, friends began to arrive at the house, as if by chance, and so we had to increase production. People started to like that "pirate" beer and we finally had to decide: La Pirata was coming out of hiding!

LA SAGRA

In Toledo everything has a special aura. It may be because of its ancient history, because of the mark left by the "three cultures" on its streets or because of the tradition of its crafts, but the truth is that this "World Heritage" city is different from the rest. Perhaps for this reason, LA SAGRA is also a different kind of beer. Because every corner and every detail of the land we live on inspires us to make a beer to enjoy the usual moments like never before. A "heritage of all" beer, enjoyed by thousands of people around the world.

This creates an incredible and magical fruity flavour with delicate caramel notes and a toasted finish. Brewed from 7 selected barley malts, it has an intense coppery colour and full body. With fruity taste and aroma, caramel notes and a toasted finish. Serving temperature: 6-8°C (43-46 °F). Alc. 6,1% Vol. - Size: 33cl. (11.2 fl.oz.)

NAPABIER

A Spanish microbrewery located near Pamplona (Navarra). It was founded in 2009 in Navarra, Spain by Juan Rodríguez, Josu Tañine, Txerra Aiastui and José Javier Rodríguez. They knew each other from their previous job in their former company, but after a downsizing plan they lost their jobs. After that, and with the money they got from their unemployment insurance, they decided to found Naparbier as a brewing cooperative. In their beginnings, they were mentored by a German brewmaster called Alex Schmid, who introduced Juan to the homebrewing world and later helped them to set up their factory. Their name comes from the words Napar (Navarra) + Bier (beer in German).

Naparbier Psychedelic

Can €3.50

Lager - Helles / 5.2% ABV / Noáin, Navarra

Naparbier Zukua

Can €5.50

Pale Ale - New England / 5.5% ABV / Noáin, Navarra

Naparbier Stay Clean

Can €5.50

IPA - American / 6.5% ABV / Noáin, Navarra

An IPA in the style of the American West Coast, which ensures intense aromas. It also has more hops, in this case Cascade, Citra and Motueka, which is why it is considered a Double IPA or DIPa: Notes of lime and pineapple that are later rounded off by a pleasant bitterness reminiscent of currant.
